MINING NOTES.

Mining matters in Southeastern Arizona for the past week have undergone no change of importance to the outside observer. The mines in the Turquoise district have greatly improved, and are looking far better than ever before. The Defiance, worked by the International Smelting Company, of El Paso, is shipping large quantities of ore to the smelters and has plenty in sight. The mine owned by Mr. Seaverns is apparently on the eve of a rich strike, the results of which will be determined in a few weeks. Several properties in the Dragones are opening up well, and will attract attention in the near future. Comparatively few people know that there are numerous ledges of free milling ore in the Huachuca carrying from $1 to $12 in gold, but no silver. So far it has not been profitable to work these ledges, although there is plenty of such ore in sight. The Copper Queen, at Bisbee, is holding its own and shipping copper, notwithstanding the present low price. The present aspect of this mine is that it is practically inexhaustible. The mines at Harshaw continue to produce plenty of fair grade ore, the mill being constantly at work. The nearness of water to the surface seems to be the only obstacle at present in the way of extensive developments in that district. Sonora, Mexico, is developing enormous properties, the Oso Negro having enough ore in sight to run the mill for two years. Several other mines in that country are showing equally well and capital is being more freely invested there than in Arizona. Labor is very cheap in Sonora, and the expense of working a mine there is necessarily much less than in the United States, which is an important factor. There is no question that mine owners in Arizona and elsewhere on the coast are awaiting an advance in the price of silver, the general belief being that it will go up this winter. While it is a certainty that Cleveland's administration was against silver, it seems clear that while this administration is not so strongly in favor of it as could be wished, yet President Harrison will not oppose any legislation tending to advance it. It is well known that the silver men had a majority in the last session of Congress, but the fear of the veto power deterred them from attempting any important legislation on the subject. Nothing of the kind is feared during the next session, and the outlook for silver is better now than for years. A measure will probably be presented to Congress this winter to form an alliance with Mexico and the Central and South American nations to coin a silver dollar that will represent the three Americas. By so doing the United States will make a strong, and probably successful, pull against England for the trade of our southern neighbors, and by that means will find a market for our silver. The result of the international Congress, which will meet in Washington on the 14th of next month, will have a most important bearing on this question. South America does not produce gold and is compelled to import it at a premium, while she exports her silver to England at a heavy discount. Such a course is sapping her prosperity, and should an alliance be formed silver must necessarily advance. If the United States wants silver to be at par the simplest way is to put it there, and other nations must follow suit. It is estimated that the United States produces three-fourths of the silver of the world and consumes two-thirds of her own production, and yet the supply has never, and probably will not, equal the demand.

We have it in our power to regulate the silver question, and by so doing make silver mining a profitable and steady industry. With an administration that will not oppose any measure tending to advance the interests of our country, there is no reason why we, and not England, should not regulate our monetary affairs.

In mining circles in this district there is little to report this week. The Grand Central Company is yet doing development work on their mines and only extracting sufficient ore to pay current expenses. The same can be said of the other companies which are strong enough to hold back and wait. Smaller properties are compelled to extract and ship everything in sight. Chlorides and lessees are doing fairly well, most of whom are working mines owned in the East, on which little work has been done.

The lessees of the Juniata have sunk a new shaft twenty-six feet, and are drifting towards the ledge.

The Emerald and Big Comet are producing as usual and doing considerable development work. Ore of a better grade has been found in the Comet, which is being shipped.

The Vizina had steam up yesterday and hoisted about thirty-six tons of ore. Men are at work in the mine cleaning up and putting the mine in good working shape. The force will probably be increased next week.

The Omega ran into another small body of ore this week, which is to be expected at any time as the ore lays in pockets.

Drifting south from the bottom of the shaft on the Rattling Boy continues with good indications of ore.

The Ground Hog is producing its usual amount of high grade ore and shipments are being regularly made to the mill.

Prospecting and development work is being done on the Herschel.

Work on the Old Guard will not be resumed until all litigation is settled. Just when this event will occur requires good guessing.

The Sterling Silver mill is kept running steadily on Ground Hog and Vizina ores. It will close down next Sunday for a couple of days for a clean up. The drift from the bottom of the well is now in about thirty-five feet and the water is slightly increasing.

MARICOPA COUNTY.

From the Phenix Herald we learn the following: Geo. Bellas recently arrived from his "Favorite" claim, which includes three ledges within one location. Out of a tunnel fifty feet long he brought quartz that assayed $284 in gold. The ledge is from eighteen to twenty-six inches in width. On each side of this location Mr. Bellas has two other claims, embracing the eastern half of Gold Hill. At right angles to the western boundaries runs the Portmanteau, or old Rowe mine. The entire group can be had for $50,000. Immediately west is Marcel Duga's Elizabeth mine, of which mention was made last week. On Sunday P. C. Bicknell and Frank Gray discovered a lode west of the Rowe and south of the Elizabeth that horns free gold in very considerable quantities.

YAVAPAI COUNTY.

The Phenix Gazette says that one of the best mining districts in this Territory for a poor man is the Tip Top, where nearly 200 men are now at work chloriding.

The following items are taken from the Prescott Courier:

The Ryland company is preparing to add more stamps to its mill.

Miners of Tip Top district have just shipped $30,000 worth of silver ore.

Mr. Girdler, who has a lease on the Etta, is here. His force is at present constructing a dam in the Verde river to turn water to the mill.

John Bohn, of the Model mine, near Peeples' valley, arrived in Prescott a short time ago with gold worth $800, which he ground out of Model ore in his trastra since last Fourth of July.

The Silver King mine, Groom district, keeps improving. People are constantly going to the district, the northern boundary of which is but a few miles from Prescott.

John Taylor and John Dawson are taking very rich gold ore out of their claim on the Gray Eagle.

Fisher & Dunkel have just shipped some very desirable silver ore from their mine in Turkey Creek district.

C. M. Hagadorn, owner of rich placer ground on Hassayampa creek, says very little snow will enable him to run his sluices all of the coming winter.

A pack train load of ore was brought in yesterday from the Prince mine.

Death of Judge Levi Ruggles.

The death of Levi Ruggles in Florence on the 23rd, removes another one of the old pioneers of Arizona from the scene of action. He was probably as well posted on the history of this Territory, as any other man in it, and was an active participant in its government during its existence, serving several terms in the legislature, when the capital was located in Tucson. Judge Ruggles was the first man to take up land where the city of Florence is now located, and has remained there to see a flourishing town grow up around him, and the surrounding desert brought under cultivation by the march of civilization. Judge Ruggles was 67 years old, and came to Arizona at the close of the war from Pike County, Missouri.

Deceased leaves two children, a grown daughter and a boy about 14 years old, to mourn the loss of a kind and indulgent father. The Judge was at all times sociable, and his honor was never questioned by those who knew him. He was at one time Indian Agent on the Pima reservation, and afterwards Register of the Land office, which position he resigned.—Tucson Citizen.

This camp has been boomed beyond any reasonable degree of necessity, and as a consequence a great many men are flocking here in search of employment. The supply is in excess of the demand, and we consider it a duty to sound a note of warning. There are great opportunities here for the prospector with a little means, but for the man without any money, our advice is not to be too eager to reach this camp. Too much ink is being spread in the endeavor to build a town, and too little interest is being taken in developing our wonderful mineral resources.—San Pedro Outlook.

Parents should be careful that their children do not contract colds during the fall or early winter months. Such colds weaken the lungs and air passages, making the child much more likely to contract other colds during the winter. It is this succession of colds that causes catarrh and bronchitis or paves the way for consumption. Should a cold be contracted, loose no time but cure it as quickly as possible. A fifty cent bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will cure any cold in a few days and leave the respiratory organs strong and healthy. For sale by H. J. Peto.
